The Climate Partnership of the city of Cologne (DE) and Yarnicocha (PE)

Public Workshop, Reference No. 3.4
German Pavilion, Pavilion Area, COP24 Venue

OVERVIEW

Since 2017, the city of Cologne (Germany) and the city of Yarinacocha (Peru) entered into a “Municipal Climate Partnership” in close cooperation with the indigenous peoples of the Ucayali region.

The German programme, financed by the Federal Ministry of International Cooperation and Development, aims to guide advice and support economically both municipalities to elaborate a joint climate action plan. In close cooperation, the municipalities carry out projects involving their citizens and civil society.

The Cologne-Yarinacocha climate partnership plans to embrace the main challenges in the Yarinacocha region: deforestation due to palm oil plantation and the violation of indigenous rights, while Cologne tries to reduce its CO₂ emissions due to energy and heat production as well as transportation.
